Are there any concerns?

Hail and Wind damage claims are unheard of in Hawaii. Many customers ask if this is a legitimate opportunity. The answer is yes. The storms are well documented on the local news and it has been verified through these channels that insurance companies do in fact pay for new roofs from storm damage. Insurance claims are filed under the homeowner's policy, they do not cause your premiums to go up as it is considered an act of God, and it will not get your policy cancelled.

The only cost to the homeowner is the low cost of their insurance policy deductible, which is typically less than $1,000.00.
